The Thermals, a pillar of salt, The Body, The Blood, The Machine, 2006

we were born to sin
we don't think we're special, sir we know everybody is

we built too many walls
and now we gotta run a giant fist is out to crush us

we run in the dark
we don't carry dead weight long we send them along to heaven

i carry my baby
her eyes can barely see her mouth can barely breathe

i can see she's afraid
she can see the danger we don't want to die, or apologize for our dirty thoughts, for our dirty bodies now i stick to the ground i stick to the ground i won't look twice to the dead walls i don't want my wife a pillar of salt

that's why we're escaping
our dirty god, our dirty bodies
